It's 2017 and America is different. The assaults on our civil liberties and civil rights are relentless both in Tennessee and across the country. The White House's egregious executive orders and actions are fueling dangerous and unconstitutional practices nationwide.

But the ACLU is not backing down. We remain vigilant. We aren't going anywhere. Our network of state affiliates are in courtrooms, in state legislatures and Congress, and on the street successfully confronting these challenges. We are harnessing the energy of hundreds of thousands of old and new supporters who are using their voices to protect and promote freedom and fairness.

This year, in addition to presenting highlights of our hard-won victories, we want to make a promise to you: The ACLU has never, and will never, abandon its mission to fiercely defend the Bill of Rights and translate those guaranties into reality for everyone. For nearly 100 years, we have stood up to American presidents of both parties to ensure that our country makes good on its founding promise as the land of the free. As an organization, we've seen nearly a century of progress and setbacks — and we've always risen to the challenge and kept up the fight. America's promise of freedom and fairness is its hallmark. But promises must be kept. That's why the ACLU is here — to ensure that the American promise of liberty and justice for all becomes a reality.

As we have since the founding of the ACLU of Tennessee almost fifty years ago, we continue to pursue our promise to fight for racial equity and a more fair and equal criminal justice system. We promise to continue to advocate for the right of immigrants and refugees to be treated with fairness and dignity. We promise to continue to stand up for your right to express yourself freely — including your right to protest, your right to love whom you love, and your right to worship, or not, as you choose. We promise to continue to defend the very bedrock of our democracy: the right to vote.

All of us — our staff of strategic and tenacious advocates and litigators, our board of directors and office volunteers, our members and our supporters — are prepared to keep our promise and fight the good fight for our hard-won freedoms and rights.

With your confidence in our work and your continued support, we will prevail.

With many thanks,

SUSAN L. KAY
President

WE ARE the ACLU of TENNESSEE
From lobbying at the state legislature for bills that would reform unfair driver’s license revocation, shut down the school-to-prison pipeline and help people with criminal records get jobs, to supporting local marijuana decriminalization ordinances, ACLU-TN fights for criminal justice reform and racial equity.

We joined a lawsuit after a fifteen-year-old boy was held in isolation for five days at a Rutherford County juvenile center, expanding the suit to a class action and winning a preliminary injunction prohibiting the county from subjecting children to solitary confinement while our case proceeds. We also intervened when eleven children were arrested at their Murfreesboro elementary school for allegedly failing to stop a fight weeks earlier. ACLU-TN worked with the families to ensure they had access to counsel. The district attorney ultimately dismissed the charges.

We joined with the Beacon Center of Tennessee, the Tennessee County Services Association, Goodwill Industries and the Nashville Area Chamber of Commerce to form the Tennessee Coalition for Sensible Justice, a non-partisan group supporting common-sense reforms that enhance public safety and promote rehabilitation and re-entry. In our first year, we successfully lobbied for reforms to driver’s license revocation and juvenile expungement.

The question is not ‘is [an individual officer] a racist?’ The question is:
What about our culture and the messages that we give to our police make them so afraid of [black men]?

PROTECTING PRISONERS WITH HEPATITIS C

With our partners, we filed a federal class action lawsuit challenging the Tennessee Department of Corrections’ systematic denial of treatment to inmates with Hepatitis C, which violates the Constitution’s protection against cruel and unusual punishment. We have also asked that TDOC develop a new plan for diagnosis and treatment that complies with the community standard of care.
SPEAK YOUR MIND.
BE YOURSELF.

Two of ACLU’s tentpole issues — free speech and LGBT equality — center around the idea that the Constitution empowers each of us to freely express ourselves — without the threat of government interference. ACLU-TN has proudly defended that right to free expression for nearly 50 years.

HALTING GOVERNMENT SPYING ON PROTESTERS
We sued to stop the City of Memphis from requiring blacklisted local political activists to be escorted by police when visiting City Hall, a violation of not only the First Amendment but of a 1978 ACLU-TN consent decree prohibiting the Memphis government from monitoring constitutionally-protected political activities. That consent decree was the result of a lawsuit we filed after discovering that the city’s domestic intelligence unit had spied on local political groups for years. The case is pending.

DEFENDING LGBT SPEECH & GENDER EXPRESSION
We defended the gender expression of a Sumner County student, filing a complaint with the U.S. Department of Education’s Office for Civil Rights, and hired an LGBTQ organizer to help defend gender equality and more at the legislature. And in a victory for free speech, we settled a federal lawsuit on behalf of a Giles County student who was banned from wearing a pro-LGBT shirt to school.

PROTECTING SPEECH ON COLLEGE CAMPUSES
From cancelled speakers to protests and counter-protests, First Amendment guarantees are being hotly debated on university campuses. We successfully lobbied in support of the “Campus Free Speech Protection Act,” which reinforces the guarantees of free expression and gives public university students the “broadest possible latitude” to discuss issues at school. Tennessee’s new law is being hailed as one of the most comprehensive in the nation.

FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

Expelling people like me from public spaces does nothing to protect anyone’s privacy. Forcing trans students into separate spaces sends the message that trans people should be ashamed of themselves and their bodies.

— Henry Seaton, ACLU-TN LGBTQ organizer
STAND UP AND BE COUNTED.

Since 2008, states across the country, including Tennessee, have passed voter suppression measures to make it harder for Americans — particularly people of color, the elderly, students and people with disabilities — to exercise their fundamental right to cast a ballot.

ENSURING ALL VOICES ARE HEARD IN TENNESSEE

In the weeks before the election, we sent a letter to Tennessee Secretary of State Tre Hargett calling on his office to allow thousands of voters wrongfully purged from voter rolls due to inactivity to cast provisional ballots. The voters’ removal defied a recent Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals decision striking down the practice of purging voters based on their failure to vote in prior elections as a violation of the National Voter Registration Act. We continue to work with partner organizations to correct this problem for future elections.

LETPPEOPLE VOTE

In Tennessee this election season, we worked hard to protect rights at the ballot box by distributing tens of thousands of free voting rights resources across the state through our “Let People Vote” campaign. We also created and distributed a flyer informing indigent voters how to obtain a free photo ID for voting purposes, and that they can still vote even if they do not have a photo ID or the funds to obtain the documents necessary to get one.

ACLU VOTING RIGHTS VICTORIES ACROSS THE U.S.

After years of struggle, ACLU prevailed against North Carolina’s notorious voter suppression law, struck down by the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals in July. ACLU also repeatedly vanquished Kansas voter suppression laws targeting poor and minority individuals and secured reforms to online voter registration in multiple states.

ONE INVESTIGATION FOUND THAT IN DAVIDSON COUNTY ALONE MORE THAN 19,000 PEOPLE HAD BEEN PURGED FROM VOTER ROLLS FOR INACTIVITY OVER A THREE-YEAR PERIOD.

-- ACLU-TN on why we called on the Tennessee secretary of state to allow purged voters to cast their ballots.
OPEN ARMS. WELCOME NEIGHBORS.

As president, Donald Trump has unleashed dangerous attacks on immigrants and refugees — from signing two Muslim ban executive orders to launching massive ICE deportations — and ACLU has sprung into action to fight back against assaults on equality and justice in Tennessee and beyond.

ACLU TO TRUMP: “WE’LL SEE YOU IN COURT”

When Donald Trump signed an executive order suspending Syrian refugee resettlement and banning entry of nationals from seven majority-Muslim countries, ACLU immediately took action, filing a lawsuit challenging the ban as violating the Due Process and Equal Protection Clauses of the U.S. Constitution. Soon after, a federal district court judge blocked Trump’s ban, and when Trump signed a second discriminatory order, ACLU challenged and successfully halted it as well. The Supreme Court has agreed to hear the case, and ACLU will once again deliver on our election night promise to “see [Trump] in court.”

287(g) IN KNOX COUNTY

After Knox County Sheriff Jimmy Jones applied for the 287(g) immigration enforcement program, we urged the U.S. Department of Homeland Security to reject the application, citing his office’s track record of threatening constitutional violations and of allegations of abuse. We lobbied the Knox County Commission to pressure Jones to withdraw his request, but the application was approved. We will continue to monitor the Knox County Sheriff’s Office for civil rights violations of the program.

FIGHTING RELIGIOUS DISCRIMINATION IN TENNESSEE

With 50 other ACLU affiliates, we filed a Freedom of Information Act request with our local U.S. Customs and Border Protection office to expose if the Trump administration was executing the Muslim ban in violation of federal stays. We also circulated “Know Your Rights” materials for immigrants and refugees across the state and led empowerment workshops for Muslim communities.

A note on our support

The elections in November brought about uncertain times in our country. With our democracy seemingly under siege at the local, state, and federal levels, our base took action and supported the ACLU at unprecedented levels. We have seen an increase in activism, volunteerism and financial support.

We will use this additional support to grow our capacity and advance civil liberties and civil rights for all those who call America home.
